45. Defendant Best Buy Company, Inc. is a Minnesota corporation with its principal place of business in Minnesota. Defendant Best Buy Enterprises, Inc. is a Minnesota corporation with its principal place of business in Minnesota.

46. Both Defendants are employers within the meaning of the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act ("ADEA"), 29 U.S.C. § 621, et. seq., the Minnesota Human Rights Act ("MHRA"), Minn. Stat. CE. 363, and Minn. Stat. § 181.81.

47. This action is brought under the ADEA, 29 U.S.C. § 626(b) and 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) for and in behalf of the above-named Plaintiffs and other persons similarly situated who may opt into the action, and this Court therefore has original jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

48. This Court has supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs' state law claims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367 because those claims are pendent to and part of the same case or controversy as that giving rise to the ADEA claims.

49. Venue of this action in the United States District Court for the District of Minnesota is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because both Defendants reside in the District of Minnesota and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(c) because the events giving rise to Plaintiffs' claims occurred in the District of Minnesota.

ADMINISTRATIVE CHARGES AND PROCEEDINGS

50. On or about December 22, 2003, Plaintiff Hall timely filed a class-wide charge of age discrimination with the U.S. Equal Employment Commission ("EEOC"), which was cross-filed with the Minnesota Department of Human Right ("MDHR"), alleging among other things that: (a) Best Buy was engaging in a pattern or practice of age discrimination against himself and other similarly situated older employees; (b) his termination was part of a class-wide pattern or practice of age-based terminations, demotions and forced retirements and resignations in the IS Department that began in 2002 and was continuing; (c) Best Buy had been hiring and promoting younger persons throughout this same period; (d) Best Buy provided incomplete, misleading and false information to him and to others in an attempt to induce them to waive their rights under the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act and the Minnesota Human Rights Act by withholding from them accurate information about the extent and scope of its pattern of terminations of older employees; and (e) that he was filing the charge on behalf of himself and all similarly situated employees of Best Buy who had been terminated, demoted, or forced to retire or resign their employment in whole or in part due to their ages during the years 2002 and 2003.

51. On or about December 22, 2003, Plaintiff Jothan timely filed a class-wide charge of age discrimination with the U.S. Equal Employment Commission ("EEOC"), which was cross-filed with the Minnesota Department of Human Right ("MDHR"), alleging among other things that: (a) Best Buy was engaging in a pattern or practice of age discrimination against himself and other similarly situated older employees; (b) his termination was part of a class-wide pattern or practice of age-based terminations, demotions and forced retirements and resignations in the IS Department that began in 2002 and was continuing; (c) Best Buy failed to consider him for open positions for which he was qualified; (d) Best Buy had been hiring and promoting younger persons throughout this same period; (e) Best Buy provided him no demographic data about those who were terminated and those who were retained, and refused to give him more than 24 days in which to consider the release with which he was presented; (f) Best Buy withheld the demographic data and gave him less time to consider the release because it wanted him and others to sign the release without knowing the extent and scope of its pattern of terminations of older employees; and (g) that he was filing the charge on behalf of himself and all similarly situated employees of Best Buy who had been terminated, demoted, or forced to retire or resign their employment in whole or in part due to their ages during the years 2002 and 2003.

52. On or about August 26, 2004, Plaintiff Aschenbeck timely filed a class-wide charge of age discrimination with the U.S. Equal Employment Commission ("EEOC"), which was cross-filed with the Minnesota Department of Human Right ("MDHR"), alleging among other things that: (a) Best Buy was engaging in a pattern or practice of age discrimination against herself and other similarly situated older employees; (b) her termination was part of a class-wide pattern or practice of age-based terminations, demotions and forced retirements and resignations in the IS Department that began in 2003 and was continuing; (c) Best Buy also notified employees in other departments that they were being terminated at the same time, and these terminations fell disproportionately on older employees; (d) Best Buy had been hiring and promoting younger persons throughout this same period; (e) Best Buy provided incomplete, misleading and false information to her and to others in an attempt to induce them to waive their rights under the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act and the Minnesota Human Rights Act by withholding from them accurate information about the extent and scope of its pattern of terminations of older employees; and (f) that she was filing the charge on behalf of herself and all similarly situated persons age 40 or over who Best Buy terminated, demoted, or forced to retire or resign during the time period from January 1, 2003, to the present.

53. On or about August 26, 2004, Plaintiff Brennan timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothen and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Brennan, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

On or about August 20, 2004, Plaintiff Smith timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothan and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Smith, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

87. On or about August 4, 2004, Plaintiff Steuck timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothan and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against her and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Steuck, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

88. On or about August 25, 2004, Plaintiff Stoner timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothan and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Stoner, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

89. On or about March 8, 2004, Plaintiff Summers timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothen and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Summers, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

90. On or about January 20, 2004, Plaintiff Vorobeychik timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothen and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against her and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Vorobeychik, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

91. On or about August 25, 2004, Plaintiff Walstrom timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothen and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Walstrom, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

92. On or about August 25, 2004, Plaintiff Winters timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothen and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Winters, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

93. On or about August 25, 2004, Plaintiff Zahradka timely filed a class-wide administrative charge with the EEOC, which was cross-filed with the MDHR, which, like the charges of Hall, Jothan and Aschenbeck, alleged that Best Buy discriminated against him and other similarly situated employees on the basis of age in violation of the ADEA and Minnesota law by, among other things, terminating Zahradka, and by terminating, demoting, or forcing the resignation or retirement of other older employees.

94. Each of the forty four above-named Plaintiffs hereby consents to become a party plaintiff in this action.

FACT ALLEGATIONS

95. In April of 2002, Best Buy engaged Robert A. Willett ("Willett"), a global managing partner and member of the Executive Committee at Accenture Ltd., as a consultant and special advisor to its Board of Directors on matters relating to operational efficiency and excellence.

96. At about the same time as its engagement of Willett, Best Buy began to engage in a pattern or practice of age discrimination against its older Information Systems ("IS") employees and other similarly situated employees. The above-named Plaintiffs in this action and other similarly situated employees were subject to and the victims of Best Buy's pattern or practice of age discrimination.

97. As part of its pattern or practice of age discrimination, Best Buy began to use performance plans, job assignments, ratings quotas and other measures to pressure its older IS employees and other similarly situated employees to quit and/or to justify their terminations.

98. As part of its pattern or practice of age discrimination, Best Buy discriminated with respect to training opportunities and job assignments, giving younger employees the opportunity to learn new technology and assigning those employees to positions where they could utilize that new technology, while channeling many of the older employees into positions involving older technology which was becoming obsolete.

99. As part of its pattern or practice of age discrimination, Best Buy discriminated with respect to management training and promotions, giving younger employees management training and promoting younger employees into management positions, while excluding many of the older employees from management training and management positions.

100. Best Buy illegally took the above measures and others to classify its employees on the basis of age, and to otherwise adversely affect the employment of older IS employees and other similarly situated employees.

101. Beginning in or about 2003, Best Buy began to force out or involuntarily terminate older IS employees and other similarly situated employees, while hiring younger employees.

102. On or about October 10, 2003, as part of its pattern or practice of age discrimination, Best Buy terminated the employment of 25 of its IS Department employees, with these terminations falling heavily on those employees who were age 40 or more at that time.

103. Twenty of the IS employees terminated on or about October 10, 2003, were over the age of 40, including 13 of the named plaintiffs, and another turned age 40 the day after his termination, while younger IS employees were disproportionately retained.

104. Best Buy's disclosure of those terminated from the IS Department failed to disclose all of the employees age 40 or more who were terminated on or about October 10, 2003.

105. In January 2004, Best Buy engaged Willett's company, Accenture, to reduce costs in the Human Resources area, including the termination of some HR Department employees, with a stated intention to engage Accenture for a similar project in the IS area.

106. On April 14, 2004, Best Buy reported that it planned to outsource its Information Systems work to Accenture which would result in the layoffs of 130 IS Department employees. It stated that Accenture by contract with Best Buy would offer jobs to 650 of the 820 employees who then worked in Information Technology for Best Buy and that those workers would continue to be located at Best Buy's corporate headquarters along with an additional 40 IS Department employees who would continue to work directly for Best Buy.

107. On April 14, 2004, Best Buy notified approximately 126 employees of its IS Department that they would be terminated effective June 14, 2004. On or about June 14, 2004, it informed those employees that 82 of the 126 IS employees to be terminated (about 65%) were age 40 or more, including 31 of the above-named Plaintiffs.

108. The proportion of IS Department employees notified of their terminations as of April 14, 2004, on information and belief, was heavily weighted against employees age 40 or more.

109. Best Buy's disclosure of those terminated from the IS Department, on information and belief, failed to disclose all of the employees age 40 or more who were terminated as of June 14, 2004, and may have included other employees, under age 40, who were retained as employees at Best Buy.

110. On April 14, 2004, Best Buy also announced that it had cut 30 corporate jobs in other areas, including its Finance Department.

111. Best Buy disclosed that 12 of the 13 employees who were notified on April 14, 2004, that they would be terminated from Best Buy's Finance Department were over the age of 40 and that the 13th was age 38. These terminations fell heavily on older employees within that department.

112. In April 2004, Willett was named as Best Buy's Executive Vice President – Operations. Willett's stated responsibilities include reducing Best Buy's cost structure. Willett is one of four Best Buy executives involved in negotiating the terms of Best Buy's engagements with Accenture.

113. In the fiscal year ending February 2004, Willett was paid consulting fees by Best Buy of $238,796 and accrued consulting fees totaling $384,245 and was reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses totaling another $209,311.

114. As part of its pattern or practice of discrimination, Best Buy sought to obtain releases of age discrimination claims from its terminated employees without complying with applicable law. Among other things, Best Buy provided incomplete, misleading and inaccurate demographic data regarding those selected for termination and those retained. Best Buy also refused requests from terminated employees for complete and accurate demographic data and failed to provide any demographic data regarding employees terminated and retained to some of the terminated employees and failed to provide them with the required minimum period of days to consider Best Buy's proposed severance and release of claims.

115. Best Buy induced similarly situated former Best Buy employees to sign legally invalid releases of their claims for age discrimination.

116. As part of its pattern or practice of discrimination, Best Buy has failed to provide its older employees with consideration for employment opportunities, has refused to transfer older employees into open positions for which they were qualified and has refused to re-hire its former employees for positions for which they were qualified.

117. In an article published on November 8, 2004, Best Buy's spokesperson stated that Best Buy's workforce skews young and that the average age of its corporate employees is just 29.

118. The aforesaid pattern or practice of age discrimination by Best Buy was willful.

119. The Plaintiffs are each 40 years of age or older, and are within the class of persons protected against age discrimination by the ADEA, 29 U.S.C. § 621, et seq., and the MHRA, Minn. Stat. § 363A.02, et seq.

120. The Plaintiffs are among the former employees of Best Buy who have been adversely affected by the aforesaid pattern or practice of age discrimination.

Best Buy also discriminated on the basis of age, in willful violation of the ADEA and MHRA, against each similarly situated person who may hereafter opt into this action, by engaging in the aforesaid pattern or practice of age discrimination and by terminating, demoting, forcing to retire or resign, or otherwise adversely affecting the employment of such persons. As a direct and proximate result thereof, each such person has suffered damages in an amount to be determined at trial, including, but not limited to, lost salary, bonuses, and other forms of compensation, lost retirement benefits, insurance benefits and other employee benefits, and damages for mental anguish and suffering.

COUNT THREE

OLDER WORKERS BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT

395. Plaintiffs incorporate herein by reference paragraphs 1 through 394, above.

396. This is a representative action under 29 U.S.C. § 626(b) and 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) by the above-named Plaintiffs and other similarly situated persons who opt into this action.

397. As set forth more fully above, Best Buy sought to obtain releases of age discrimination claims from the above-named Plaintiffs and other similarly situated employees without complying with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, 29 U.S.C. § 626(f).

398. The above-named Plaintiffs and others similarly situated were adversely affected by Best Buy's failure to comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act.

399. The above-named Plaintiffs and other similarly situated employees are entitled to a declaration from the Court that Best Buy failed to comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act in seeking and obtaining releases of age discrimination claims and that, as a result, such releases are invalid.

COUNT FOUR

AGE DISCRIMINATION – DISPARATE IMPACT

400. Plaintiffs incorporate herein by reference paragraphs 1 through 399, above.

401. This is a representative action under 29 U.S.C. § 626(b) and 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) by the above-named Plaintiffs and other similarly situated persons who opt into this action by filing an appropriate notice.

402. As set forth more fully above, Best Buy has utilized practices, policies and procedures that have disparately impacted the above-named Plaintiffs and other similarly situated present and former employees of Best Buy in the IS department and other departments or units, resulting in an unlawful pattern or practice of age discrimination in violation of the ADEA, 29 U.S.C. § 621, et seq.

403. The above-named Plaintiffs and others similarly situated were disparately impacted by the discriminatory practices, policies and procedures of Best Buy.

404. As set forth more fully above, Best Buy has utilized practices, policies and procedures that have also disparately impacted each of the above-named Plaintiffs because of his or her age in violation of the ADEA and the MHRA.

405. As a direct and proximate result of the aforesaid age discrimination by Best Buy, each of the Plaintiffs has suffered damages in an amount to be determined at trial, including, but not limited to, lost salary, bonuses, and other forms of compensation, lost retirement benefits, insurance benefits and other employee benefits, and damages for mental anguish and suffering.

JURY DEMAND

406. The Plaintiffs demand a trial by jury.

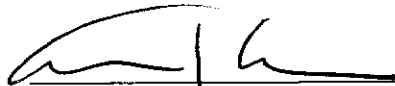

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs request that the Court enter judgment in their favor and against Best Buy as follows:

1. Awarding each of the Plaintiffs back pay and benefits, together with interest thereon;

2. Restoring each of the Plaintiffs to positions comparable to the ones from which they were terminated or demoted or, in lieu of reinstatement, awarding each Plaintiff front pay and benefits for the period remaining until that person's expected retirement age;
3. Awarding each of the Plaintiffs liquidated damages pursuant to the ADEA in an amount equal to that person's back pay and benefits award, together with interest thereon;
4. Awarding each of the Plaintiffs all other damages recoverable under the MHRA, including compensatory damages, damages for mental anguish and suffering, treble damages and punitive damages;
5. For a declaration that the releases of age discrimination claims presented by Best Buy to Plaintiffs and other similarly situated employees of Best Buy are invalid as a matter of law;
6. Awarding Plaintiffs attorneys fees and costs pursuant to 29 U.S.C. §§ 216(b) and 626(b); and Minn. Stat. § 363.14, subd. 3;
7. Awarding Plaintiffs prejudgment interest and their costs and disbursements herein; and
8. Awarding Plaintiffs such other and further relief as the Court and/or the jury deems equitable, appropriate and just.
